If you want a career you can be proud of, and you have the passion to work in public and community safety, then explore what JIBC has to offer.

Justice Institute of British Columbia is Canada's leading public safety educator. We educate people whose work supports safe and healthy places to live, work and play.

Every year, 30,000 people learn at JIBC. They are younger people starting a career, and experienced professionals looking to advance their careers.

Our graduates serve with professionalism and compassion.

They are paramedics, police officers and fire fighters.

They are sheriffs who protect the courts, and correctional and probation officers who supervise offenders and reintegrate them into the community.

They are emergency management specialists who prepare responses to major emergencies and disasters.

They are counsellors who help people recover and heal.

In countless agencies, organizations and companies, you'll meet confident, committed people who turned to JIBC to help them develop their capacity to lead, negotiate and facilitate.

At JIBC, expect to be challenged. Expect hands-on learning through simulations and scenarios. Expect to gain insights from instructors who are seasoned professionals in their fields.

If you're committed and ready to work hard, you're going to learn the theory and the technical skills. You're going to build teamwork and communication skills. When you're done, you'll feel more competent and more confident.

You'll be ready for the job, and ready to make a difference.

ABOUT JIBC

JIBC ON-LINE & ADVANCED TRAINING TECHNOLOGY

JIBC uses and develops leading-edge software and equipment to improve and expand training and educational opportunities for public safety professionals in B.C. and around the world.

The Institute has its own Technology Enabled Learning and Teaching (TELT) Centre that is responsible for developing and implementing educational technology projects. Over the past three years, TELT has supported the development of a number of online courses, program-specific mobile apps, and a blended-learning format for courses that incorporate online learning and traditional classroom sessions. TELT also leads a number of innovation initiatives, which currently includes a mobile learning initiative and an open textbook initiative.

The expanded range of course formats and learning technology innovations have enabled students from many parts of the world to receive an internationally recognized education. JIBC students have benefited from the ability to learn from highly experienced instructors working in the field in B.C. or anywhere else in Canada.

Simulations are at the heart of JIBC's education and training. Many of them use advanced equipment and tools that allow students to actively apply their knowledge and skills in a safe learning environment. One example is iStan, an advanced adult patient simulator used by the JIBC Paramedic Academy. "Stan," as he is affectionately called, is 190 centimetres tall, weighs 85 kilograms and has internal robotics that mimic real patient symptoms. Stan, along with other patient simulators, provides students the opportunity to safely practice procedures and hone their assessment skills for a wide variety of respiratory, cardiovascular and neurological conditions.

JIBC is also a leader in computer-assisted simulation. It has developed Praxis, an award-winning web-based system that gives students and professionals an immersive, interactive first-person perspective of an unfolding scenario or event. CEOs have used it to test their business continuity plans. Emergency management professionals have gone through scenarios using Praxis to improve their processes and procedures. Whatever the scenario, Praxis has increasingly become a valuable tool for students, business leaders and public safety professionals.

LEADING-EDGE LEARNING AT JIBC

THE GROWING SOPHISTICATION AND GLOBALIZATION OF CRIME, AND THE INCREASING SCALE OF NATURAL AND HUMAN-CAUSED DISASTERS, ARE AMONG THE COMPLEX CHALLENGES FACED BY PUBLIC AND COMMUNITY SAFETY PROFESSIONALS. JIBC FULFILLS ITS MANDATE TO PREPARE STUDENTS FOR THOSE CHALLENGES BY ENSURING THAT OUR PROGRAMS AND COURSES INTEGRATE THE LATEST RESEARCH AND TECHNOLOGY.

MINING CELLPHONES FOR DATA

It's like a scene from any modern crime television show. In a lab at JIBC's New Westminster campus, law enforcement analysts are huddled over tables strewn with tools, laptops, microscopes and other specialized equipment used to examine evidence.

In this case, it's a collection of cellphones. Some phones still work, while others are inoperable for one reason or another: they've been thrown from a tall building, dropped into water, or smashed to destroy incriminating evidence.

Today, it's the analysts' goal to learn how to retrieve vital information from these phones, a skill that could ultimately help them solve a crime, find loved ones, or save a life.

JIBC has partnered with various agencies and organizations to provide cutting-edge training for public safety professionals in B.C. and around the world. In the case of learning about cellphone repair and forensic analysis, JIBC has partnered with TEEL Technologies Canada. The company is owned by Bob Elder, a retired detective from the Victoria Police Department and a Special Constable with the Saanich Police Department.

Elder is an expert in getting information from cellphones, GPS units, hard drives, cameras and other portable storage devices. But cellphones are the most ubiquitous device. According to Statistics Canada, nearly 78% of Canadians are connected with a cellphone.

"Almost everyone uses a phone and that phone tells many stories," said Elder.

This training can be critical in many different types of investigations. Perry Kuhl, a JIBC instructor and detective with the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's Office, said the information could be used to find contact information of relatives of deceased individuals without any identification.

"Other times, it's the 20,000 text messages on a cellphone where 500 of those texts are proof of trafficking; proof that the one time you saw them dealing is not an isolated incident; the proof that may eventually lead to [a suspect's] incarceration," said Kuhl.

JIBC is the only institution in Western Canada where officers and new recruits can learn about the latest developments in everything from cybercrime to forensic analysis. It's essential training; it's leading edge; it's here at JIBC.

GREAT INSTRUCTORS

TOM LEWIS: GOING THE DISTANCE IN EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT TRAINING

Tom Lewis' energy is undeniable. His enthusiasm, intensity, and passion for excellence have made him an internationally respected mentor in the field of Emergency Management. In 2013, he was recognized as JIBC's Instructor of the Year.

Tom retired in 2006 as Surrey's Deputy Fire Chief and City Emergency Coordinator. But his retirement didn't last long. Less than 100 hours after leaving Surrey's fire department, he co-facilitated his first course at JIBC.

Since then, he has facilitated emergency management courses in B.C., across Canada, and around the world. He's taught everyone from oil executives and First Nations leaders, to key stakeholders preparing for the Vancouver 2010 Winter Olympic and Paralympic Games, and the G8/G20 summits in Ontario.

Jerome Rodriguez, Program Manager of Incident Command and Emergency Training at JIBC said, "He possesses an innate ability to bring the training to life."

JENNIFER KEYES: BRINGING THE LAW TO LIFE FOR PROSPECTIVE POLICE RECRUITS

Vancouver Police Department Sergeant Jennifer Keyes brings a passion and energy to Canadian Criminal Law. A lawyer by training, she was initially in private practice and then a Federal Crown Prosecutor for the Public Prosecution Service of Canada before she switched professions and joined the VPD in 1999.

Currently VPD's Liaison with Ecomm-911, Sgt. Keyes also serves as a director of the Vancouver Police Union and an assessor for police applicants, in addition to being a JIBC instructor.

Students invariably stay engaged in her course through her stories, which highlight the key role police officers have in the legal system, and the essential skills officers need.

Whether it's through stories, questions, or debates on a current issue, Sgt. Keyes helps students glimpse the legal nuances they will have to deal with as the next generation of police officers.

ROD GILBERT: TRAINING THE NEXT GENERATION OF PARAMEDICS

If you train at JIBC to become a paramedic, you'll benefit from Rod Gilbert's reputation and decades of experience.

Rod teaches in the Primary Care Paramedic (PCP) Program and has also taught the Emergency Medical Responder (EMR) Course. Both courses are extremely demanding, not just for the student, but also for the instructor.

"In order to teach effectively, you have to know a great deal of information about many subjects," he notes.

That's where Rod's experience becomes invaluable. He has been a paramedic for more than 25 years, spending much of his career as a Medical Technician for the Canadian Armed Forces.

And he's still active in the profession. He works as a paramedic in the Arctic and serves as a health and safety officer for a company that specializes in remediation work.

JIBC IS HOME BASE FOR MANY OF THE MOST EXPERIENCED INSTRUCTORS IN PUBLIC SAFETY. THEY ARE ON THE FRONTLINES OF THEIR PROFESSION, TEACHING REAL-WORLD SCENARIOS AND TAKING A HANDS-ON APPROACH TO HELPING STUDENTS. MEET SIX OF THEM:

JOE SPINDOR: PREPARING FUTURE RECRUITS IN LAW ENFORCEMENT

Joe Spindor is overjoyed when he sees his students successfully launch their careers in security and law enforcement, especially if he's been a reference. A 28-year veteran of the New Westminster Police who retired as a Staff Sergeant in 2012, Joe has a broad range of experience in policing. He's done it all: from patrolling the streets and being a detective of major crimes, to spending 13 years as part of the city's emergency response team.

He has been teaching since 1990, and has instructed a number of courses in the Law Enforcement Studies Diploma (LESD) program since 2009. He is an active reference for his students, helping prospective recruits prepare for various security and police-related career opportunities.

"I believe this program has a definite hands-on benefit for young people to develop into law enforcement officers. I feel it's my responsibility to do everything I can to assist them in their goal."

BRIAN HUTCHINSON: GAINING A GLOBAL PERSPECTIVE IN PUBLIC SAFETY

Brian Hutchinson can prepare you to make a difference as a public safety professional. He's a Lieutenant in the Disaster and Emergency Planning Section of the Special Operations Division of Vancouver Fire & Rescue Services. Previously, he was involved with recruitment and outreach after serving 13 years as a frontline fire fighter.

Brian's area of expertise is in disaster and emergency management. At JIBC, he teaches in a number of programs. He's also been able to share lessons from his personal and professional focus on international development. He has spent several years working with developing nations to enhance their capacity and capabilities to serve and protect their communities from emergencies and catastrophes.

"Opportunities abound at JIBC for those who seek constant challenge and professional development," he said. "The saying that success is a combination of preparation and opportunity rings true. I have been able to share this experience with many others."

BRUCE RAMSAY: HELPING FRONT-LINE RESPONDERS DEAL WITH TRAUMATIC STRESS

If you want to know how to handle the stresses that come with responding to an emergency or challenging situation, you'll want to learn from Bruce Ramsay.

A retired Deputy Fire Chief from North Vancouver District Fire and Rescue Services, Bruce is one of the most experienced instructors in North America on the subject of how public safety professionals respond to traumatic stress.

He has helped first responders involved in some of the most challenging emergencies, including those dealing with the 1995 Oklahoma City bombing, and people providing 9-1-1 on-scene support at Ground Zero on September 11.

At JIBC, he teaches a number of Critical Incident Stress Management (CISM) courses.

Laura Glover, Program Manager of the Community Safety Program at JIBC said, "He has been a wonderful resource to students, JIBC, the CISM field and trauma survivors internationally for many years."

Be the one

on the front line
who takes criminals off the streets who upholds the law

If you have what it takes to be a police officer, JIBC has what it takes to get you ready.

The Institute is home to the province's Police Academy where recruits from municipal police agencies in B.C. receive their mandatory training. It's also where law enforcement professionals in B.C. come to further hone their skills and enhance their careers, whether they are B.C. officers with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP) or a member of one of B.C.'s municipal police departments.

With its team of highly experienced officers and instructors, JIBC is the place where law enforcement personnel learn the latest skills to execute their complex, challenging and sometimes dangerous role in serving and protecting the public. To help prospective recruits stand out against the competition, JIBC offers two specialized programs for people looking to forge a career in law enforcement.

The Law Enforcement Studies Diploma (LESD) is a two-year program that gives you the theoretical background, applied skills and specialized knowledge required to become a superior candidate in a range of investigation and law enforcement occupations.

As part of the LESD program, students earn common law enforcement certifications including Incident Command 100 certification, Canadian Firearms Safety Course certification and Basic Security Training (BST) certification.

JIBC also offers the Bachelor of Law Enforcement Studies (BLES) degree, which provides students with the in-depth knowledge and expanded skills for an exciting career in a wide range of law enforcement, public safety, regulatory and compliance professions. As part of the degree program, students develop their leadership skills, along with critical thinking and ethical decision-making skills. They also gain in-depth knowledge of the Canadian criminal justice system, as well as experience with intelligence analysis and forensic evidence investigation.

WATERFORD EXCHANGE

JIBC GRADUATES GET A GLOBAL PERSPECTIVE IN POLICING

For James Copping and Diana Hon, completing the Law Enforcement Studies Diploma (LESD) didn't just give them an advantage in their pursuit of a career in law enforcement. It broadened their perspective of the world and policing. The two students spent September to December of 2013 in Ireland at the Waterford Institute of Technology (WIT). They were the second set of participants in an international exchange program, which is an annual opportunity for LESD students.

JIBC partnered with WIT because of its prominent Criminal Justice Studies program and its robust exchange program, according to LESD Program Coordinator Steve McCartney. A leading post-secondary institution in south-east Ireland, WIT offers a wide range of programs including a BA in Criminal Justice Studies. McCartney said there are invaluable benefits that come from an international education exchange opportunity. "The experience helps young people expand their horizons and gain independence," he said. "They come home with a greater level of confidence that enhances their academic learning and helps them in their career planning." For Diana, the opportunity to spend a semester in Europe was "like no other."

"I could write for days about the different things I have learned from this adventure, such as self-discoveries, building friendships, and expanding my independence, just to name a few. This opportunity allowed me to finish the LESD program with a 'bang' and I cannot express enough gratitude for the people who have made this possible."

For James, the experience in Ireland broadened his knowledge of the world and gave him an appreciation of the various types of policing in different communities. "It wasn't just the classes that gave me knowledge about policing. We met with a constable over there, Mary, and she gave us a tour of the station. I was getting the insights about policing from friends I met. I learned a lot about what it was like over there."

The trip also helped him discover his interest in becoming a probation officer after taking a probation course at WIT. "I like the rehabilitation aspect of it. Knowing how important rehabilitation is, and knowing that I'm more of a person that likes that aspect was beneficial for me in choosing a direction in my law enforcement career."

Kevin Sanford, Program Director, Office of International Affairs, said participation in an international exchange helps increase a student's employability and their ability to integrate successfully into the justice or public safety sector.

"We're building partnerships with educational institutions so more of our students can gain this type of international exposure, whether it's for a few weeks or an entire semester," he said.

For both James and Diana, the program was an invaluable opportunity to grow. "For the lucky students to be selected in the future for this opportunity, I would advise them to prepare to discover and build yourself, whether it's building confidence to travel along through the semester, learning to budget, or discovering your social skills," said Diana. "You discover things about yourself when you travel alone, right from boarding the plane."

The JIBC Health Sciences Division is at the forefront of changes in health sciences education and training. By providing experiential learning in the latest techniques to paramedics, physicians, nurses and allied health professionals, the Division is helping to build a comprehensive system of care.

Today, paramedics can be found in settings beyond the traditional ambulance environment – they assist physicians and nurses in emergency rooms, support patients with in-home care, work in industry and provide public health education in the community. Their extensive knowledge and clinical background has enabled many paramedics to move on to medical schools, nursing programs and other health fields.

Our Primary Care Paramedic and Advanced Care Paramedic programs are the only paramedic programs in British Columbia that are accredited by the Canadian Medical Association and certified by the International Standards Association.

First Responder training is for anyone who is the first to respond to an emergency. Examples include fire fighters, police, safety and security personnel at sporting events, staff in recreation facilities, and staff in special care facilities.

Our programs are offered in regions throughout B.C. including New Westminster, Chilliwack, Kelowna, Victoria, Kamloops, Port McNeill and Port Alberni.

PARAMEDIC ACADEMY

RICK MERCER: PARAMEDIC FOR A DAY

Rick Mercer aptly describes the mission of paramedics. "They are solid and dependable, and yet you do not want to meet them in the line of duty," he said while at the JIBC's Kelowna campus to film an episode of the Rick Mercer Report. "They are the highly trained and seldom-thanked professionals who are the first ones on the scene of any accident. No, I'm not talking lawyers, but paramedics."

JIBC is home to B.C.'s Paramedic Academy, the most prominent provider of first responder and paramedicine training in the province. The Academy's paramedic programs are the only ones in B.C. that are accredited by the Canadian Medical Association and certified by the International Standards Association.

While Rick Mercer had fun with the stethoscopes, laughing gas and the ambulance lights and sirens, JIBC is serious about its vital role training paramedics.

Whether you are interested in a career as a paramedic, or looking for a unique starting point in a career in health services, JIBC is the place to learn from the most trusted professionals in the industry.

Watch the video of Rick Mercer at the JIBC Paramedic Academy on the JIBC youtube channel: youtube.com/justiceinstitute. Look under "JIBC favourites."

Be the one

who fights fires
who saves lives
who protects communities

If you are passionate about helping others and want to be on the front lines in protecting property and rescuing people in a fire, accident or disaster, JIBC is the place to start your journey.

The Fire & Safety Division (FSD) at JIBC is where fire and rescue personnel from fire departments all over B.C. come to get their training and education. It's also where fire departments from around the world turn to for an internationally recognized training program for fire fighting recruits.

JIBC offers a comprehensive range of programs that include basic to advanced fire fighting training, specialized fire officer training, and certificate, diploma and degree programs.

Many of these courses and programs are nationally and/or internationally accredited, giving future fire fighters the opportunity to work in many jurisdictions outside of B.C.

As emergency response becomes increasingly complex, JIBC applies the latest research and techniques in its training programs at its main New Westminster campus and its campus in Maple Ridge, which is designed specifically for hands-on fire fighting training.

Whether it's finding new ways to decontaminate a site of hazardous materials, dealing with a train derailment fire, or rescuing someone from a ship, airplane or building, JIBC is B.C.'s centre of excellence in fire and rescue training.

ONE WORLD SCHOLARSHIP

JIBC FIRE FIGHTING GRADUATES IN CENTRAL AMERICA

Since 2010, a select group of graduates of JIBC's Career Fire Fighter Pre-Employment Certificate program have had the unique opportunity to support fire fighting training in Central America.

The graduates' participation has been made possible through funding from the Irving K. Barber One World International Scholarship provided in partnership with the Victoria Foundation, and with additional financial support from JIBC and The JIBC Foundation. The latest deployments of JIBC graduates have been with the Fire Rescue International Training Association (FRITA), a Canadian organization of experienced fire fighting professionals from across the country dedicated to providing training-based international aid.

"The One World program and our partnership with FRITA creates a rare opportunity for JIBC graduates to support fellow fire fighters working in challenging environments," said Charlene Jordan-Jones, Deputy Director of the Fire & Safety Division at JIBC.

For the graduates who received the 2014 One World scholarship, the deployment to Panama was the chance to apply what they learned, make a difference, and learn more about themselves and others in the profession overseas.

Ryan Millen said, "Volunteering is a big part of my life and passing on the knowledge I received from the program to the Panamanian 'bomberos' [fire fighters] is one of the best opportunities I can think of."

For JIBC graduate Millan Lavalle, 23, from Delta, the deployment was his first opportunity to apply his training. He was part of the team that provided hands-on training to Panamanian recruits who were studying to receive a basic fire fighting certificate from JIBC. While there, he and another JIBC grad, Olivier Hovasse, participated in an emergency call to a motor vehicle accident.

"We successfully removed the driver from the crushed vehicle in a short amount of time. He was in quite bad condition as we got him into the ambulance."

"This was a very hard call to respond to," Millan said. "Yet, I am very proud of the job we did to help give [that] young man the best chance of survival. [This event] was a sobering reminder of what the job of a fire fighter can entail. I developed a new, profound belief of why I am doing this."

JIBC is a leading-edge provider of leadership skills development and training for people working within Aboriginal communities and organizations. Developed with input from a variety of Aboriginal resources, JIBC has programs and courses designed to help learners become managers and leaders in their fields.

The Aboriginal Leadership Certificate is a one-year, 30-credit program designed for current and emerging leaders and managers who aspire to make a difference in their community. The program is designed to maximize personal and professional growth, with a curriculum that highlights leadership, dispute resolution, Aboriginal justice, community safety, and human services. The program emphasizes the importance of understanding the diversity of Aboriginal cultures and contemporary issues and provides a detailed overview of the legal, legislative, and socio-economic framework for Aboriginal peoples in Canada.

The Gladue Decision and Report Writing course is designed for people working within Aboriginal communities and the justice system to meet the legislative requirements of Criminal Code sentencing provisions for offenders. As it relates to the Regina v. Gladue and Regina v. Ipeelee decisions. This highly participatory course provides learners with effective and practical tools required in writing the Gladue Report, as well as opportunities to enhance research, writing and presentation skills.

JIBC also provides opportunities to bring JIBC programming in to the community through our Customized Training Solutions. Courses can include a customized curriculum, and can be delivered on a flexible schedule. We work extensively with Aboriginal communities to design, develop and deliver solutions tailored to meet their needs.

At its main campus, JIBC's Elders-in-Residence Program; provides our Aboriginal students, staff and faculty with a personal connection to culture. Elders from local Aboriginal communities share their knowledge and experience on campus cultural activities including drum making, talking circles, carving, storytelling, crafts, traditional drumming, and singing.

ABORIGINAL LEADERSHIP

JIBC PARTNERSHIP HELPS ABORIGINAL WOMEN TAKE ON LEADERSHIP ROLES

In northern B.C., there was a gap in educational opportunities for Aboriginal learners. Many programs for people of Aboriginal descent focused on developing skills and experience for careers in the trades. There were few programs available for aboriginal women wishing to take leadership positions.

Annita McPhee, President of the Tahltan Central Council, said, "With six active resource development projects under way on Tahltan territory, the need for skilled employees to fill senior administrative and management positions has never been higher. These projects are creating unprecedented opportunities for Tahltan women to move into fulfilling careers at home."

Recognizing a need in the community, JIBC partnered with government and First Nations communities to help Aboriginal women in the north to advance beyond administrative roles into positions of leadership.

Cheryl Matthew, Associate Director of Indigenization at JIBC, said, "We have been working to establish mutually beneficial and respectful partnerships with First Nations people across the province to provide culturally relevant education that leads to capacity building for communities."

In September 2013, JIBC began offering an Associate Certificate in Aboriginal Leadership in the small community of Dease Lake, B.C. The one-time, 15-credit program provided a part of the full program for the Aboriginal Leadership Certificate and provided Aboriginal women in the community a stepping stone to further their post-secondary education.

JIBC worked with the Tahltan Central Council, Tahltan Health & Social Services, the Tahltan Band, Tahltan Nation

Development Corporation, the Iskut First Nations, and the First Nations Technology Council to deliver the program. Funding was provided by the Canada-BC Labour Market Agreement and the Ministry of Advanced Education.

McPhee said, "The Tahltan Central Council is pleased to have developed a relationship with JIBC to deliver a program that will support Tahltan women."

INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

JIBC: INTERNATIONAL DESTINATION FOR PUBLIC SAFETY EDUCATION

Each year, students from around the world come to JIBC to complete their academic education and professional training.

By coming to JIBC, international students receive an accredited education in a wide range of public safety fields. Many of those programs are internationally recognized, allowing our graduates to work in many parts of the world. JIBC's intensive training programs for international students can lead to a range of credentials from certificates and diplomas to bachelors and graduate degrees in areas of study that include:

- Fire & Safety
- Law Enforcement
- Emergency Medicine and Paramedicine
- Emergency Preparedness and Management
- Services for Victims of Crime
- Conflict Resolution
- Community Safety

JIBC's Office of International Affairs provides support for international students at every stage of their education, from application to graduation.

LEADERSHIP AND CONFLICT RESOLUTION

Are you looking to grow as a leader or to learn how to avoid and resolve conflict?

In countless agencies, organizations and companies, you'll meet confident, committed people who turned to JIBC to help them develop their capacity to lead, negotiate and facilitate.

In rapidly changing and complex times, leaders in all sectors need to equip themselves with new skills and training to successfully manage their teams and organizations, and plan for the future. JIBC is highly respected for providing some of the most comprehensive programs and courses in Canada in leadership and conflict resolution. The Associate Certificate in Leadership & Conflict Resolution is a great option to gain skills that you can apply immediately in your workplace and in your community.

You'll discover your aptitudes as a team leader, and explore current leadership themes. You'll acquire skills for facilitation and for resolving interpersonal conflict. And you're sure to gain self-awareness, confidence and fresh perspectives.

COUNSELLING

If you have a passion to counsel people in vulnerable situations, JIBC has the programs to provide the skills to realize your goal.

We educate practitioners who require the essential skills to protect, support and empower children, youth, adults, families and communities. Our diverse programs give staff skills to assist individuals in coping with the consequences of crime and trauma and the knowledge and tools to enforce community bylaws. We provide practical and relevant training that is designed for executive directors, managers, practitioners, frontline staff and supervisors in counselling and community safety roles.

JIBC offers more than half a dozen different programs for counsellors and therapists that assist individuals and families coping with a wide range of challenges. Among them is the Graduate Certificate in Complex Trauma and Child Sexual Abuse Intervention, which draws on the most current research on effective complex trauma intervention.

THE JIBC FOUNDATION: SUPPORTING SAFE, SECURE AND HEALTHY COMMUNITIES

The JIBC Foundation recently celebrated a milestone – 20 years supporting Justice Institute of British Columbia. The Foundation plays a pivotal role in maintaining the Institute's worldwide reputation for excellence, innovation and leadership in public and community safety education. By inspiring giving through various activities – including an Awards Gala – the Foundation raises funds for student support, applied research, equipment, technology and other tools for learning. Thanks to the generosity of donors, the Foundation raised almost $2 million in 2012-2013; of that $900,000 was directed toward student scholarships, bursaries and awards.

Elisabeth Tatchen, Career Fire Fighter Pre-Employment Certificate student and recipient of the Jocelyn Roberts Memorial Award. "The award is greatly appreciated at this time as it will help me pay off debts that I incurred during my studies, and will allow me to pay for future expenses associated with pursuing a full-time fire fighting career. I'm aware that Jocelyn Roberts was the first female captain in the Richmond fire department. I will be forever grateful to her, and to other trailblazing women like her, who have made it possible for me to achieve my dream."

ONGOING PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

CONTINUING YOUR PUBLIC SAFETY EDUCATION AT JIBC

If you've been recruited to be a police officer, sheriff or correctional officer, you'll receive your mandatory training at JIBC. The Institute is home to B.C.'s Police Academy, which is responsible for training all municipal police recruits in the province. The Academy also offers online courses for experienced police officers. Candidates must first be employed by one of B.C.'s police departments in order to be eligible for enrolment.

In partnership with the Corrections Branch of the BC Ministry of Justice, JIBC also trains all Adult Correctional Officers in B.C., who supervise sentenced and remanded adult offenders in correctional centres throughout the province. JIBC also develops and delivers training for BC Sheriff Services. Through the Institute's Threat Management Centre of Excellence, JIBC offers specialized training, both online and face to face, in high-security trial management, protective intelligence, and risk and threat assessment for individuals and facilities.

But even after you've completed your basic training and you've become a vital public safety professional, your educational journey at JIBC is far from over. In fact, your training at JIBC will continue throughout your career.

Using instructors who are active in their respective fields, JIBC designs, develops and delivers courses that fulfill continuing professional development requirements for a wide range of public safety careers including law enforcement, fire fighting and paramedicine.

If you're a police officer, you'll have the opportunity to learn new investigative skills through a number of certificate programs. If you're a fire fighter, you can learn the latest methods in dealing with hazardous materials or specific fire fighting scenarios. If you're tasked with preparing your organization's emergency management plan, you can learn the latest in business continuity plans or creating effective drills and exercises.

These are just some of the examples of continuing education that professionals gain at JIBC. As Canada's leading public safety educator, JIBC continues to expand and update its program and course offerings to meet the evolving needs of public safety professionals in B.C. and around the world.

After more than three decades in professional development training, JIBC has become a trusted provider and developer of public safety continuing education. Check out JIBC.CA to see all that we have to offer.
